Topolinski

A hula of a time in Nuuánu

The incomparable Jolani Luahine and the Ka Hula A Hawaii Dancers, led by John Topolinski, will be among the performers at "A Day at Queen Emma," from 10 a.m. tomorrow at the Queen Emma Summer Palace, 2913 Pali Hwy.

Featured will be a variety of Hawaiiana displays and demonstrations, ranging from featherwork to quilting, from medicinal plants to Niihau shells, from Hawaiian table settings to floral arrangements.

The Daughters of Hawaii, a non-profit group responsible for the care and maintenance of the Summer Palace in Nuuanu and the Hulihee palace on the Big Island, is sponsor of the day's activities.

THE LUAHINE performance will be from 11:30 a.m. to noon. Topolinski's dancers will appear from 12:45 to 1:30 p.m.

A rare tapa collection, Hawaiian plate lunches, and several tableaux — rooms at the Palace recreated to resemble the era of Queen Emma's residency — will also be part of the celebration.

Admission: $1 for adults, 50 cents for children under 12.
